The banquet for the Huggy Bears Tennis Invitational, the secretive Southampton doubles tournament, was filled with many surprises on Saturday night.

While organizers were press-shy and all but locked down Tony Forstmann's Cobb Road home, where the event was held, Joan Jedell, publisher of The Hampton Sheet, scored an invite and shared the following with Diary.

While this year was supposed to mark the 20th and final Huggy Bear tournament, Forstmann asked the celebrants if they had one more year in them.

The audience of wealthy men and blond women went wild, and the event will now be around next August.

"The crowd looked like it was handpicked," said Jedell, who dishes out Hamptons news Saturday mornings on 77-WABC Radio.

"The guys were gorgeous. The women were gorgeous. Of course, there were a few men with their bellies hanging out, but, nonetheless, they had the blond arm candy, which kinda makes the bellies OK."

The hot lot, which chowed down on filet mignon and tuna, was treated to a very special concert starring Don Henley and his friends Stevie Nicks and Pink Floyd's Roger Waters.

Henley brought down the house with such tunes as "Witchy Woman" and "Hotel California," paired up with Nicks for a rendition of "Leather and Lace," and later joined Waters to sing songs off "The Wall" album. While apple pie and ice cream was served, Jedell said, "The dessert was really this concert."
